Humming history's tune

» A Penn Manor High School teacher gets her students' creative juices flowing — and important lessons taught — by using American history documents set to music.

LANCASTER COUNTY, Pa. - A Penn Manor High School teacher recently used music as a catalyst for critical thinking in her American history class.

But her use of music is nowhere near the likes of "Schoolhouse Rock!" or "The Alphabet Song."

"This is more profound thinking," Lara Paparo says.

Last week, during a lesson on the Indian Removal Act of 1830, Paparo played the song "You Will Go" for her freshman classes.

She's the first history teacher in the nation to use this song in a classroom.

"You Will Go" is part of a musical American history program by Emmy-Award winning composer Lynda Roth of Laguna Beach, Calif.

Penn Literacy Network, a professional development program in the Graduate School of Education at the University of Pennsylvania, has partnered with Roth to put her music in classrooms.

Roth's brainchild is called The Muse Project.

Its first program, "America Revealed," is a choral curriculum derived from original texts in American history and literature.

Roth has organized the material into various modules.

The Origins module traces events from Columbus to the Constitution. The Manifest Destiny module examines America's expansion west.

"You Will Go" is part of the Manifest Destiny module. Roth recorded the song in August.

The intention of The Muse Project is to spur creative thinking and
